

ABSTRACT

This research project is entitled: Writing101- Android Application, a mobile application created for preschoolers six years old and below. There are several research questions that came into the proponents' mind such as how to incorporate the concept of writing in making an android application, what are the hardware and software requirements in designing and developing the system, and what are the objectives of this research. The proponents gathered data through different articles in the internet which has relevance to the topic, as well as researching some thesis at the library, and looking for similar mobile applications available at App Store(iOS) and Google Play Store(Android). The proponents thought of ways on how to make their application unique and meaningful to the target users. The result of evaluation conducted through a survey implies that the proponents achieved their desired output, thus, succeeding in creating an edutainment mobile application for preschool below six years old. Future researchers can use this study as their guide in creating a mobile application. However, the proponents recommend conducting more study about the recent trends and different technologies used in mobile application development.
