

ABSTRACT

The prototype robotic arm is a jointed cylindrical configuration. It possesses 4 degrees of freedom and is intended to perform programmable pick-and-place operations. The manipulator joints are driven by stepper motor and controlled by micro-controller for practical use in assembly operations. An open loop system is implemented to reduce implementation cost. The Basic language is use in the creation of the accompanying software.

